

With Papershrink's help, JDR now has all its technical manuals put onto CD, cutting costs, saving time and saving space

Papershrink's Document Scanning Services have been utilised by JDR to save time, money and improved space available within the offices.

JDR Cable Systems (JDR) can boast of more than 75 years of experience in the design and manufacture of custom cable and umbilical systems for the oil and gas, seismic exploration, defence, remote intervention and diving industries. JDR's main head office is based in Ely, Cambridgeshire.

JDR wanted a way of internationally distributing their manuals securely and also saving space within their own offices. The manuals also benefited from being bookmarked using the PDF format which made searching for the relevant pages within the manuals extremely quick, therefore saving time.

Aside from making the data more manageable and secure another knock on effect from having technical manuals scanned onto a CD is the fact they have a full data recovery system in place. If any of the originals get destroyed or disappear JDR have full back ups to refer to.

Elisabeth Belisle, Managing Director of Papershrink says "Having an ongoing and close working relationship with JDR is the key to the successful partnership we have together. JDR's Technical manuals are in constant use by a number of staff and a short and extremely accurate turnaround time is essential. By having all their technical manuals on CD they can now send data across the globe right where it's needed. "

Papershrink have helped JDR continue to have their manuals backed up onto CD, made sure turnaround times are kept within specific time frames and allowed JDR to make their technical documents available globally and securely. Papershrink have helped JDR save time, money and space.
